Present

Tapani Tommila, City of Jyväskylä

Only one contestant showed up to the Jyväskylä site visit. Planning architect Tapani Tommila took a walk around the competition site with the participant and presented the area.

Q: How tall can the new buildings be?

A: There are no restrictions for heights of the new buildings in the brief. It is important, however, that they fit into the area.

Q: What should the ground level spaces be like?

A: Ground levels of the new buildings should be active, e.g. they should open to the streets, enable active street life and be able to accommodate different kinds of local services.

Q: Should the apartments have balconies?

A: Yes, the majority of the apartments should have either a small front yard or a balcony with a view to the street.
